

Sponsorship and Exhibit Facts Sheet

The 15th International Conference on Atomic Layer Deposition (ALD 2015) will be a three-day meeting (preceded by one day of tutorials), dedicated to the science and technology of atomic layer deposition of thin films. This conference is sponsored by the AVS Thin Film Division.

Atomic layer deposition (ALD) is used to fabricate ultrathin and conformal thin film structures for many semiconductor and thin film device applications. A unique attribute of ALD is that it uses sequential self-limiting surface reactions to achieve control of film growth in the monolayer or sub-monolayer thickness regime. ALD is receiving attention for its potential applications in advanced high dielectric constant (high-k) gate oxides, storage capacitor dielectrics and copper diffusion barriers in advanced electronic devices, as well as for solar energy, flexible electronics, photonics and biological applications. It is of interest for any advanced technologies that require control of film structure in the nanometer or sub-nanometer scale.

The ALD conference has steadily grown in number of participants, from 80 at its initiation in 2001 to 600+ participants in the past years. Preceding ALD conferences were held in:

- 2001: Monterey (US)
- 2002: Seoul (Korea)
- 2003: San Jose (US)
- 2004: Helsinki (Finland)
- 2005: San Jose (US)
